

Thousands of formerly incarcerated people in Washington allowed to vote with no carve-out

written by admin | October 30, 2022

The November midterm elections are less than two weeks away and for thousands of people in Washington, it's the first time they are eligible to vote under a new law that restored voting rights to formerly incarcerated people. "I was actually incarcerated at 17," said Cyril Walrond. Walrond spent 17 years in prison and Read more