Three members of the group Dads Against Predators "lured" a man to a store before gunfire erupted – and now warrants have been issued in the North Carolina case, officials said. The group members are accused of using the Meetup app to get the man to come to a Target store in Winston-Salem. When the man arrived on June 28, all three members started to beat him on the head repeatedly, according to the city's police department. The 25-year-old man reportedly pulled out a gun and fired...
